RE: Rock Solid Manufacturing

Dear Mr. Marino:

I represent Rock Solid Manufacturing LLC. You have been working with my client for several months under the false impression that you had valuable intellectual property to share and economic benefits you could provide.

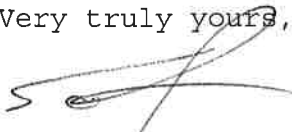

You have recently discontinued work with my client. However, you have continued to misrepresent that you have a connection to Rock Solid and the right to act on its behalf. On at least one occasion, you have attempted to have a customer pay my client's funds to you.

You must immediately cease and desist from all further use of Rock Solid's trade name and other property rights. You must also cease all contact with customers of Rock Solid. Those actions breach my client's rights and expose you to substantial liability.

I trust that there will not be any further intrusions into my client's rights. If there are, my client will take legal action, which is almost certain to include a lawsuit to enjoin further illegal appropriations of its property and recovery of damages for any improper profits, damage to reputation, reimbursement of appropriations and any other injuries that we determine have occurred.

You should not contact my client about this matter. If you believe that further communication is necessary, all such communication should be directed to me.

Very truly yours,

Scott O. Pratt
